E. W. Breece Brings Action In Common Pleas Against W. W. Young

WOULD RESTRAIN A SHERIFF'S SALE

Demurrer Is Filed To The Petition; Other Items From Court House

Late Wednesday afternoon in the common pleas court of Knox county, E. W. Breece commenced an injunction suit against W. W. Young.

The plaintiff states in his petition that on Oct. 2, 1918, the defendant obtained a judgment against him in the sum of $32 in the court of Squire George S. Harter. The plaintiff alleges that he was not at default at the time the judgment was rendered. He further alleges that on Feb. 10, 1920, the defendant obtained an execution in the common pleas court and levied upon property on North McKentzie street. The sale of the property is now being advertised in the Banner and will be sold at sheriff's sale unless the defendant is restrained.

The plaintiff therefore asks for an injunction restraining the defendant from selling the property. He further asks that the judgment in the sum of $32 be declared null and void.

Paul M. Ashbaugh is the attorney for the plaintiff.

SHERIFF MOSHOLDER HAS STRENUOUS DAY SERVING LEGAL PAPERS

Three Men He Sought Were Dead; Death Visited Two Other Houses; Stalled In Snow Drift

Sheriff Mosholder had a strenuous day of it Wednesday in an attempt to serve summons on the jurors who were drawn as a special venire from the wheel a day or so ago.

On his trip through the county the sheriff discovered that he had summons for three dead men. The names were drawn from the wheel and were probably placed there after the death of the men as the wheel was just filled a week ago by the jury commission.

This did not end the sheriff's troubles.

He arrived at one house just after a death had occurred in the family. Journeying on a little farther he found that death had arrived at the home just a few minutes before and had removed one of the members of the family.

The sheriff's troubles did not end here. When he started for home, his automobile stalled in a snowdrift and it was necessary for him to call assistance from the city.

MISS BANNING MAKES A STRONG APPEAL

At the Methodist Protestant church, North Mulberry street, last evening, a large congregation heard another strong Gospel appeal by Miss Banning the evangelist. The sermon was taken from the Savior's portrayal of the rich man and Lazarus. In a plain and startling manner emphasis was laid on the eternal destiny of the rich man, "In hell he lifted up his eyes."

The audience was moved by the singing when six men from the choir sang of the "City whose people never grow old," and then Miss Banning sang the hymn entitled "The Great Judgment Day."

In the closing service seven persons were led to decision and made profession of conversion or renewal.

All but one of these were adults. The afternoon meetings at two o'clock are especially helpful for all who attend them. The song service this evening will begin at 7:30.

A CAMPAIGN IS BEING WAGED FOR TEACHERS

Ohio Is Short Nearly 3500 Teachers At The Present Time

SUPT. MARRIOTT GETS A LETTER TODAY

Plea Is Made For Teachers From The High School Graduates This Year

A vigorous recruiting campaign is now being waged in Ohio for additional teachers. Ohio is short nearly 3500 teachers at the present hour. The new school revenue bill which has just passed the legislature is encouraging to the profession in Ohio. This law makes the minimum salary per year $800. Many high school graduates of 1920 will immediately prepare to enter the profession. County Supt. J. C. Marriott has just received an encouraging letter relative to the recruiting campaign from Hon. P. P. Claxton, U. S. commissioner of education, which he submits below:

WHY NOT TEACH

1. Inasmuch as America is entering into the field of world relationship the schools must play a greater fundamental part in making all Americans world-minded.

2. That there never has been a time in the profession when the rewards both in salary and dignity have promised so much.

3. Salaries have advanced since 1915 in many places 50 per cent, and quite generally through the country 33 per cent. Practically the whole nation is making a campaign for better remuneration for teachers.

4. Ohio has the best pension system of any state in the Union, in accordance with the statement of the secretary of the Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teaching.

5. The future social respect and standing of the teachers will be greater.

6. The task set for education through the public schools in reconstruction and the building of a world democracy is big enough to engage the most talented of our young people.

7. Teachers have the privilege of living in a world where the call for human service grows greater and more joyous as his years of experience progress.

The true teacher will teach for these higher rewards so long as it is possible for him to live and make a decent living for those dependent upon him.

When I was a boy I took once or twice a month on horseback or on wagon bags of wheat and corn to the neighboring grist mill, turned by water power, and would usually wait until the grain was ground into meal or flour, which I took back home again. On these occasions I observed that the miller when measuring and pouring the grain into the hopper would take out in a small measure a half peck for each bushel to be ground. This was toll taken in pay for the grinding. He always took toll of wheat for grinding wheat; toll of corn for grinding corn; toll of rye for grinding rye.

Even so, every miller must be content to take toll of his own grist. Men and women who work in the mills, the mines, the shops, the banks in producing and exchanging things of immediate material wealth, will naturally take more toll of these material things of immediate money value than those of us who grind another kind of grist and take in pay large tolls of higher values of which many of those engaged in other occupations are ignorant.

While I hope the campaign in Ohio for better teachers may be abundantly successful, I cannot resist the temptation to appeal to all the real and true teachers of the state to remain faithful to their work, the state, to humanity, and to their own higher selves, by continuing to give the best they have in them, regardless of what they are given in return, and that they compensate themselves more fully by taking even higher tolls of those things which are inexhaustible and the supply of which is not diminished by the taking. The future of their state and of our country, the welfare of the world and their own life and happiness depend upon it.

FREDERICKTOWN

building still stands and is used and owned by Thrall lodge, No. 267, F. & A. M.

In 1841, a Rev. Mr. Mead came here from Mt. Vernon and organized a Congregational church and erected a church building on East Sandusky street, the present dwelling house of Samuel Bryant being the greater part of the building. This organization lasted about 15 years when it went to its demise for lack of finance.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

These have always been a source of pride to people who believe in advanced education. The first school in this place was probably taught by Artemas Corbin or William Farquhar in a little frame building erected for a blockhouse in the year 1812. About this time, a school was opened in a cabin which stood on the farm now owned by Perry Cover. The second schoolhouse was erected near the blockhouse, was used many years for a cabinet shop and is still standing, being used as a livery stable. The system of union or graded schools was established in 1852. Shortly after this a tract of land of about two and one-half acres—the present site—was purchased and a brick building 38 by 58 and two stories high was erected, which served for several years. Later a three-story brick was erected and it finally gave way to the present structure, to which an addition had to be built. In 1916, a fine new high school building was erected, modern in every respect, with an auditorium seating 500, a nice gymnasium, rest room, rooms for domestic science and manual training, dressing rooms for boys and girls, with shower bath, large laboratory and three large recitation rooms, with large hall, lockers, library and office. W. L. Davis is superintendent, H. D. Bishop principal, Misses Dorothy Balduff, Patience Leonard and Marian Menough teachers.

Revival services are soon to begin at the M. E. church.

Papers in different parts of central Ohio have been publishing much exaggerated accounts of the doings of Fred Culp of this place, accusing him of deserting his family, etc. This is all rot and while the family has been enduring privation and want, it was no fault of his, as he had made ample provisions for them as far as food and heat were concerned, as his family had credit at the grocery, and he left money here to pay gas bills and other expenses. He kept his bills paid up and had all the necessary credit to keep his family in a condition equal any laboring man, with the proper management of time, and this is where the household fell down—the woman being unable to look after affairs as should be and no children in whom to put any dependence, the family became in a deplorable condition, and as a result two have died. It looks like some of the Fredericktown club women lost a good chance of acting the good Samaritan. As long as some people can strut around on the street and make a showing of feathers, their ambition is gratified and the cloak hides them from the common people, but there is an all-seeing Eye that they are not escaping. We are in no way upholding the action of Fred Culp in absenting himself from his family, other than he is working at some other town where he can do better and is sending his money home to provide for them and has given satisfactory reasons why he was not here at a specified time. If some of the people who have been horrified by some of the tales told of the family recently had been doing their acts of brotherly love, some of these conditions might have been modified.
